TOMMY: It smells so-o-o-o-o good.

TAMMY: Did you make meatballs and spaghetti?

DADDY: Yes, we did, and ice cream for dessert.

NARRATOR: Everybody sits down in the same chair they always sit in. But Tiger isn't there. Just as Daddy's going to look for Tiger, the back door swings open and Tiger, Thurman and Marshmallow come dashing into the kitchen.

TIGER: I'm late because Thurman, Marshmallow, and I just walked on a rainbow.

TOMMY: You did what?

TIGER: We just walked on a rainbow. Just ask Thurman and Marshmallow. We went up one side of the rainbow and slid down the other side.

THURMAN: Woof, woof, woof.

MARSHMALLOW: Ribbit, jibbit.

TRUDY: Tiger, you did NOT walk on a rainbow.

TIGER: Yes, we did.

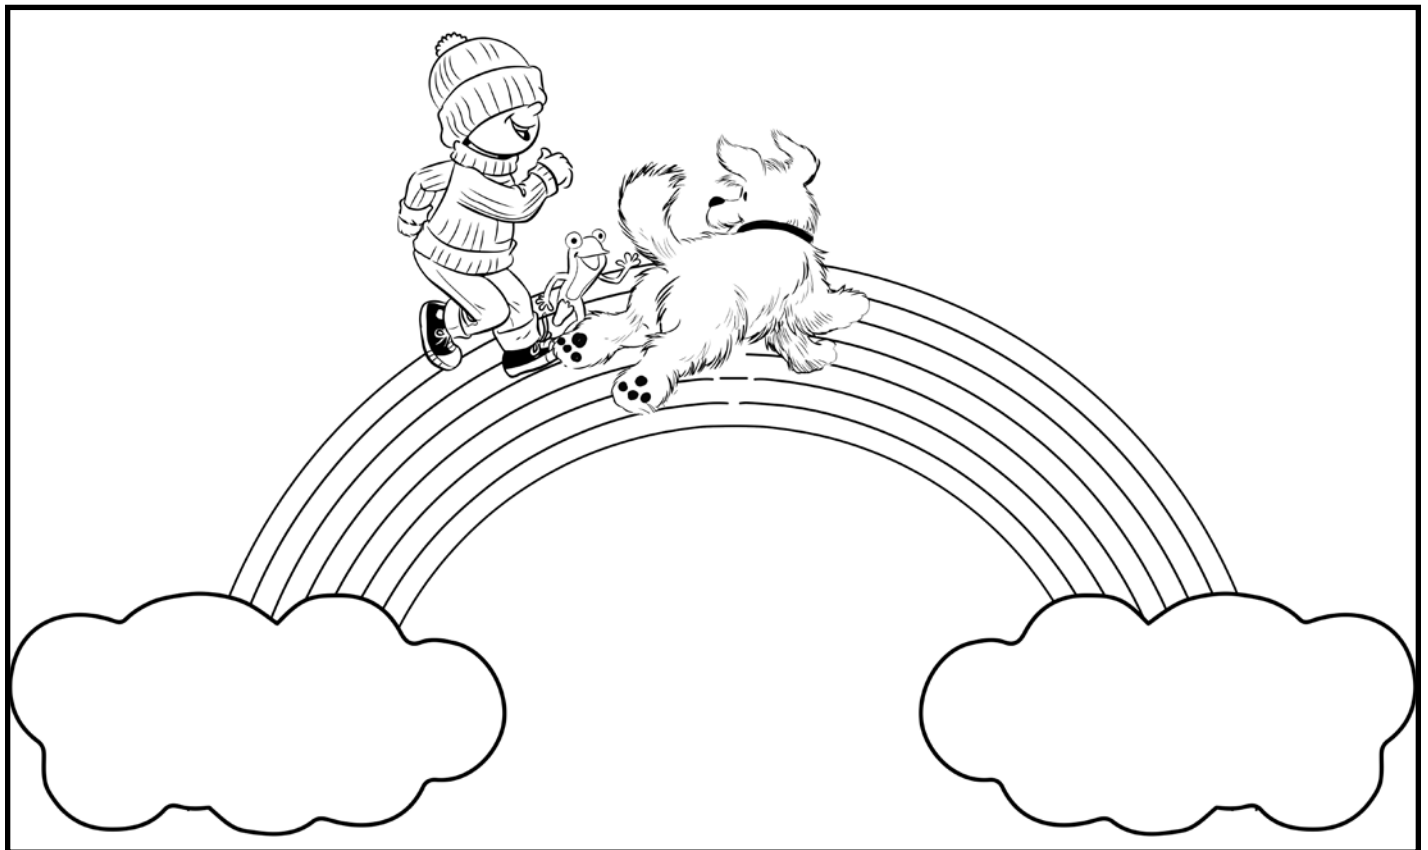

TAMMY: Please tell me what it was like. I always wanted to walk on a rainbow.

TOMMY: Next time you walk on a rainbow, I want to go with you.

TRUDY: He did NOT walk on a rainbow, because you can't walk on a rainbow!

TUFFY: Trudy, let him talk.

NARRATOR: As they ate their meatballs and spaghetti, Tiger told them what it was like to walk on a rainbow.

Tiger Tuesday and the Purple Turtles

Tiger wants to find some purple turtles.

One summer morning, Tiger was riding his bike down the old dirt path to Corn Cob Park. Thurman was running alongside the bike. Marshmallow was hopping along on the other side of the bike. Tiger saw Bob and Bill Bart riding their bikes.

“Hi Tiger. Want to ride around the park with us?” asked Bob.

Tiger knew that Mommy and Daddy had told him not to play with the Bart brothers because they always get into trouble.
